The screenshot shows the New Mexico Economic Development website. The header includes the logo and navigation links for 'Why New Mexico', 'Business Development', and 'Site Selection and Data'. The main content area is titled 'Community Development > Rural Communities > RCAC-Community Facility Loans'. A sidebar on the left lists various categories like Business Resources, Community Development, Economic Development, Housing, Infrastructure, Planning, Transportation, and Water. The main content area displays the 'RCAC-Community Facility Loans' page, which includes a 'View website' link and a detailed description of the program. The description states that the program helps develop and improve essential community facilities in the rural West, offering short-term loans for early property acquisition and predevelopment, as well as long-term permanent financing for various facilities including public and non-profit office buildings, treatment centers, emergency and transitional housing, assisted living, human services, public safety, child care, education, and cultural facilities. It also notes that many other project types are eligible and that RCAC gives priority to loan applications for projects that incorporate significant green methods and materials.
